

CroisiEurope is a French family-owned business that is the longest established river cruise company in France. They offer 68 different itineraries that cruise along 15 different beautiful rivers. Currently they are operating 28 ships that have an average capacity of 100 to 180 passengers. At the cutting edge of technology, their facilities offer comfort and safety.

Although most of CroisiEurope's passengers have mostly been French, they are actively marketing to travelers of other nationalities. For those of you who speak some French and are looking for an authentic European cruise experience – CroisiEurope is worth considering. They now have many English speaking crew on board and have also setup many of their excursions to appeal the English speaking audience.

Carefully maintained and partially renovated each year, the CroisiEurope fleet is largely made up of recently built vessels, less than five years old, all with Veritas certification. The leading European river tour operator, the CroisiEurope company owes its international reputation to its seriousness, its dynamism, its sense of innovation and its recognized value for money of long standing. On board, you will find all of the amenities and comfort which guarantee the quality and seriousness of the CroisiEurope fleet.

Taking a cruise on the Seine means Versailles! The fun and games start in Paris. Passing under the bridges of "Paris by night" is one of the highlights of this cruise after the visit to the chateau of Auvers-sur-Oise, the mecca of French painting and the first museum in the world to offer a "show trail" through the time of picnics on the grass, retro cafes and idling away the time on the beaches of Normandy.

Left bank, right bank... each port of call adds its touch of colour to the picture. Conflans-Sainte-Honorine is the boatmen's capital. Vernon invites you to dine with Claude Monet in his legendary home in Giverny, which inspired his "Water Lilies" series. Les Andelys and Chateau Gaillard awaken the memory of Richard the Lionheart, Duke of Normandy and King of England in the 12th century. Then comes Rouen, a city of art, known for the martyrdom of Joan of Arc who was burnt at the stake here. This means that the sea is not far. This is also the point where the abbey trail begins, which leads to Jumieges, a pearl of its kind, Caudebec-en-Caux, with its Seine maritime museum and its 15th century church.

CroisiEurope Accommodations

All of the cabins are located above water level and offer a panoramic view (fixed windows) of the scenery. Spacious and comfortable, they will have either twin beds or a double bed, with a bathroom (shower, WC and sink with towels provided onboard, but not flannels), 220V electricity. They are also equipped with satellite television, radio, hairdryer and safe. Some ships have cabins equipped for the (physically) disabled – contact us for details. Whatever the deck you will be located on, all of the cabins offer the same equipment and are of the same size. However, on 2-deck ships the port side is slightly smaller on the standard deck and on 3-deck ships the cabins located on the upper deck have a picture window (except in Spain: standard deck cabins have portholes).

CroisiEurope Amenities

SUNDECK:
As you cruise with CroisiEurope you will find many ways to relax on board. One way is to spend time on the sun deck taking in the sun. Take in the beautiful scenery along the river banks. Sit back and enjoy the country side with all of it's spectacular views passing stunning vineyards, ruined castles and some of France's most renowned towns such as: Avignon, Lyon, Arles, and more.

LOUNGE, BAR & LIBRARY:
The lounge, bar, and library are tastefully decorated and are designed for the relaxation and wellbeing of all. The lounge is panoramic and is located at the front of the ship (on the upper deck for 2-deck ships and on the middle deck on 3-deck ships). Pre-dinner games, dinner-dances and other lively evenings take place there. Depending on the destination, cruises may include a cultural or folk evening such as Hungarian folk show or flamenco show.

CroisiEurope reigns supreme over the kitchens on its boats. In charge of the company's Chefs, Alain Bohn manages and designs his cuisine and specific menus in the pure tradition of French cooking with his passionate kitchen teams. From time to time, CroisiEurope joins forces with a number of renowned Chefs such as Paul Bocuse, Marc Haerberlin or Emile Jung to organize gastronomic cruises full of taste and flavor.

For those traveling aboard CroisieEurope's fleet of ships, get your palate ready to experience the authentic taste of French cuisine. All that you have heard about how the French take their foods seriously will be at your fingertips! You will start out every morning with the best of breakfast. Served buffet style in the restaurant for all passengers to indulge in. For Lunch and Dinner the meals will be menu-based. They are served at your table at fixed times and in one sitting.

All of the CroisiEurope restaurants have tables that seat a party of 6 passengers. Should you be celebrating any kind of special occasion during your cruise, CroisiEurope will be willing to accept special requests for cakes, champagne, even flowers. However, these types of requests need to be made at the time of reservations, or at the latest, at least one month before boarding your cruise. For those who may have specific dietary requirements these must be stated at the time of reservations.

Drinks that are included with on board meals are mineral water, house wine, beer, fruit juice, and tea or coffee. Drinks which are not included are all drinks in the lounge/bar, wine selected from the wine list, and drinks purchased during on-shore excursions or during transfers.
